

DIRT REVIVAL IN LOUISVILLE!

As a life-long BMX racer, I can sympathize with all of the racers who have attended the Bluegrass Nationals these past couple of years in the beautiful City of Louisville, KY. There is no hiding that the quality of dirt left a lot to be desired. For that, we apologize. As the leading BMX organization in the world, we know that was not acceptable and that our members deserve only the best.

That being said, we have taken every step in ensuring that the dirt used for the 2015 Bluegrass Nationals is better than ever! At the end of this summer, our very own in-house Track Builder, the legendary Billy Allen, spent four days in Louisville working dawn to dusk to guarantee the dirt for this year's event. In those four days, Billy processed over 3,000 yards of dirt. In order to reduce the clay content, Billy mixed in and roto-tilled 500 yards of sand, which produced a perfect blend of BMX dirt.

He finished off by building multiple test jumps to ensure the overall quality that the USA BMX organization demands. With the dirt now remastered and dried, it has been moved indoors where it will remain until the track build begins in February of 2015.

We can honestly tell you that no stone was left unturned and we will be able to build an awesome track for 2015. A tremendous amount of time and resources have been spent to ensure success in 2015. So please join us the weekend of February 6th, as we start a new chapter of the Bluegrass Nationals. It is guaranteed to be bigger and better than ever with some of the best dirt in the history of the sport, there will be no better place to be than beautiful Louisville, KY!
